

Preparing for a Doctor Visit

The relationship you have with your doctor or psychiatrist is important in your recovery journey, because together you can find medication and treatment options that reflect what you want and need, work for you, and support your recovery plan and goals.

Go through this worksheet by yourself or with a member of your treatment team to prepare for your next doctor appointment.

Think About What Is Important to You

What is important to me in my life? What are my goals?

How can medications or supportive treatments help me get or keep these things?

Do medications or supportive treatments ever get in the way of things in my life? If so, how?

Preparing for a Doctor Visit

Think About What You Want to Discuss

Let your doctor know about changes in symptoms, mood, or behaviors you may be experiencing or any questions or concerns you may have.

I want to discuss

How I've been feeling since my last appointment:

Better Same Worse

Explain

New or recurring symptoms I am experiencing:

Think about:

What is working for me

What is not working for me

What I'd like to consider changing

Getting support:

Who do I want to bring to my appointment?

How can he or she help me?

(Ex: take me to appointment, take notes)

Sample Questions for the Doctor

Going to your appointment with a list of questions you can ask or hand to your doctor can help make the most of the limited time you may have with the doctor. These questions can help you begin conversations about issues that may be important to you and your recovery, such as your overall wellness, medications, and supportive treatments.

Check or write in questions you may want to ask and bring the list to your appointment.
